

ANNOUNCEMENT

Pisum sativum Plant Introductions evaluated at the Northeast Regional Plant Introduction Station at Geneva, New York, are available upon request from the PI Station. These lines have been evaluated according to the new scheme adopted by the Germplasm Resources Information Project. A catalog listing these lines is also available.

D. D. Dolan

Northeast Regional Plant Introduction Station
New York State Agricultural Experiment Station
Geneva, NY 14456 U.S.A.

STOCKS REQUESTED

I am interested in obtaining and assembling any available seed mutants Of particular interest are independent mutations at the R_s and R_p loci. However, any abnormal seed type would be appreciated, regardless of state of characterization. I will maintain and increase any of the stocks provide Please send the seed available and the source of the mutant to:

Charles Boyer

Department of Horticulture
P0 Box 231
New Brunswick, NJ 08903, U.S.A.

ERRATUM

Page 21, Vol. 11, 1979:

(Title) Regeneration of genetic lines of Pisum sativum from callus cultures.